DR. L. C. SMITH'S HORMONE WORK

Dr. Smith pointed out in his interview that results seem to be somewhat conclusive that there is rather complete harmony in the endocrine system of the young subjects, and that the antibodies occur in "bar animals, which may possibly be a condition factor in the formation of tumors. He explains this theory by saying, "We feel that when the animal becomes older, there is probably a some disturbance in the ratio of the endocrine glands, and it is this disturbing factor, either large or small, in the formation of these tumors. This theory of tumors in female dogs seems to coincide with a certain factor in the nature of the female reproductive system in humans.
