May 23 Election Will Decide Fate of Urban Renewal Plan

Miami residents will decide Tuesday, May 23, on whether an Urban Renewal Authority will have the power to act on special problems involving negotiations for funds and properties in which Northeastern A&M college will be able to acquire a considerable amount of land for future expansion.

Viking Yearbook Arrives May 15

The 1961 Viking yearbook will arrive at the college Tuesday, May 16 according to Ivan Holmes, sponsor. The books will be distributed as soon as they arrive according to Holmes.

Students who have not paid for their '61 annual or any student who has not paid for their annual pictures or returned them to the Norse Wind office must do so before they will be able to receive their book.

The staff headed by editor Kenneth Boyd wishes to thank all those who helped with the book.

A major expansion of the college would be the first project under the authority's supervision. The college wants to expand its campus two blocks southward to Central avenue, embracing an area from I street to Tar creek.

One-third of the expansion cost would be borne by the state through the college and the other two-thirds by the federal government.

Dr. Bruce G. Carter, Northeastern A&M president, has assured city planners that the college can produce its share of the financial load, expected to exceed $200,000. Unofficial estimates have placed the total cost of acquiring and clearing the land at about $750,000.

A bill has cleared the state House of Representatives last week which would recommend to the Board of Regents for A&M colleges that it make available to the college a special allocation amounting to $250,000. Even if the bill should not pass the Senate the college expects to be able to produce its share of the initial expansion cost.

The college anticipates about $500,000 in the 1960 special bond issue for state college construction programs. The use of some of that money for campus expansions would be possible if the special appropriation fails. Dr. Carter has informed city leaders.

Civilian Science Corps Has Successful Start in Miami

Miami's newly organized Civilian Science Corps, under the direction of Waymon C. Gibson, head of the college biology department, held its first meeting in NEO's Little Theatre Tuesday, May 3.

Gibson, originator of the organization, presided over the program and presented an outline of the corps' future plans and goals.

The basic purpose of the corps is to encourage laymen to assist boys and girls with school science projects and to foster a better understanding of science teaching methods.

In addition to Gibson, a number of outstanding educators and local citizens were present at the meeting.

Dr. C. M. Bridger, field secretary with Oklahoma's Frontiers of Science, addressed the gathering. He previously described the new Miami plan as a "major and important undertaking which will be watched with interest by people in science. The program has great promise."

The state official said the program outline for CSC will be taken this week to Washington, D. C. He envisions a "possibility of Miami's idea spreading throughout the United States."

Other speakers and their subjects, following a welcoming address by Dr. Bruce G. Carter, college president, were Dr. Cecil Ferree, "Implications of the Program"; John R. Wallace, "Science and the Professions"; Frank Cunningham, "The Role of the College in CSC"; the Rev. J. Donald Kruthof, "Science and Religion"; W. E. Medcalf, "Science in Industry"; and Harold Hartley, "Science in Action." Melvin Shipley spoke on the development of mathematics and presented a demonstration.

Gibson announced that anyone — "carpenters, housewives, factory workers, farmers, executives—can contribute to the success of the corps."

In many instances the layman will be forced to do research preparatory to assisting the student. "We feel that a better informed public in this area of great scientific and technical studies is vitally important," Gibson remarked.

He said that craftsmen will be needed to advise young students on the procurement of materials for projects and exhibits.

The corps, now existing only in Miami, is sponsored by the Oklahoma Academy of Science and the National Science Foundation.

Phil Sabri Wins In Talent Show

Phil Sabri, sophomore from Iran, placed first in the all-college talent show held Friday, May 5, under the direction of the student council. Sabri, who sang "Old Man River," was selected by all three judges as the outstanding performer of the event.

Well known for his performance throughout the Miami area Sabri once performed in the chorus with the Metropolitan Opera. He received $15 for being selected as top performer in the event.

Second place went to Mary Spriggs, Wyandotte, and Terry Westfall, Miami, for their one-act play production. The production was the same one that took top honors at the state junior college speech meet at the University of Oklahoma earlier this year.

In third place was a violin solo by Hooshang Moaddeli, Iran, while Ron Presson, Tulsa, finished fourth with a humorous reading. Jerry Young, Tulsa, rounded out the top five singing, "When My Blue Moon Turns to Gold Again."

Judges for the event were Vern Schwetfeger, Mrs. Pat Schehrer and Mrs. L. A. Wetzel.

Woodworking Class Boasts Frosh of 70

Northeastern A&M woodworking classes have had a variety of students throughout the years but perhaps the most unusual student ever enrolled is Mr. Claude Jones, 70-year-old student who was in the jewelry business in Miami for 45 years before retiring last fall.

After retirement Jones found himself confronted with many repair jobs that needed to be done about his home and not knowing anything about woodworking he decided to take an evening course at Northeastern A&M college.

According to Jones's instructor, Merrill Chaney, he has never had a student so eager to learn. "It seems that the more Jones learns the more he wants to learn," Chaney stated.

When asked how he was getting along in the new field Jones replied "I never realized a person could get so much enjoyment and satisfaction in working with wood. I can now do many of the jobs around the house which I have been putting off for a number of years."

Jones's interest in woodworking is so great that if he had his 70 years to live over again he might be a cabinet maker instead of going into the jewelry business. "I'll be glad when the fall semester arrives so I can continue my work in the woodworking department under the direction of Chaney," Jones added.

According to Chaney, Jones is one of several hundred men around the Miami area who have taken advantage of the night work offered at the college in woodworking. Evening classes have been conducted continually in the Miami woodshop for 14 years and Chaney estimates that around 600 men have taken his woodworking courses.

Chaney has taught night classes in woodworking at the college since 1947 which is longer than any other Northeastern A&M instructor. According to Chaney there are at least 50 well equipped shops set up in garages and basements by his former students.

Coeds Learn How To Handle Children

Young Children Used In Course

By DONNA GAMMON
Twenty Northeastern A&M college coeds are getting a real taste of the proper handling of children in the Child Development & Guidance course being offered this semester by Mrs. Mabel Speaker, home economics instructor.

Participating in the class are: Neva Boyd, Jo Ann Broom, Myrna Chesnut, Linda Corbus, Louise Duggan, JoAnn Graham, Linda Hale, Tony Houck, Martha Jenkins, Ann Lawrence, Mary Morris, Charlene Powers, Marilee Ross, Sharon Shepherd, Janice Sparkman, Imogene Steward, Marjorie Topping, Judy Tribilcock, and Linda Whitney.

Young children ranging from infancy are actually used in this course at various times throughout the year. These children, from various homes in Miami, give the students a better understanding of children's behavior.

In this course Mrs. Speaker also teaches parental study, problems of infancy, physical changes, and what to do in the case of children's diseases and illness. Students are given background for each of the children's homes. They are taught the best environment for the growth of the child along with meeting the physical needs for the growing child, which includes skeletal, nervous and digestive systems in the body.

Students are also taught the child's emotional behavior, physical development, and nutrition. Since elements in diet are of great importance in keeping the child healthy and well on its way to a happy life. Many hours are spent studying nutrition.

According to Mrs. Speaker, "the girls taking this course find it very helpful in vocational preparation, nurses training, home living and in the role as a future mother."

NEO Graduate Wins Awards

Bing Kuen Wong, former Northeastern A&M college student from the British Crown Colony of Hong Kong in China is now attending Kansas State College, Pittsburg, Kan. He has received a number of awards according to Willis L. Tompkins, dean of the college.

Wong was a recipient of one of the eight gold keys awarded during the year, selected as a senior scholar in mathematics and listed on the dean's honor society. He was also awarded the foreign student scholarship fund, chosen secretary of the Kappa Mu Epsilon, and selected to "Who's Who in American Universities and Colleges," in a recent honors convention held on the Pittsburg campus.

Next year Wong has decided to take a $2,000 graduate assistantship granted by the University of Illinois. He turned down offers from the University of Minnesota, Kansas University, Missouri University and the University of Oklahoma after deciding to attend the University of Illinois.

Summer Term At NEO A&M Opens June 1

A student may not take over three courses during the summer term. No housing or cafeteria facilities will be furnished by the college, however, the college will aid any student in finding housing facilities off campus.

Muri Rice, Miami resident who teaches at Picher during the winter, will be instructing along with Homa Thomas, college business instructor, during the summer session.

All classes will be conducted in the air conditioned Fine Arts building.

Below is a tentative schedule of courses which will be included during the summer session, June 1—July 28.

NEO Freshmen Enroll Tuesday

Pre-enrollment for the first semester of 1961-62 at Northeastern A&M will begin at 1 p.m. Tuesday, May 16, in the library. Students should consult with their counselors before Tuesday to save time in planning their schedule for next year.

It is to the advantage of all freshmen to pre-enroll for two reasons. First, it will enable them to take a course which might otherwise be dropped from the schedule because of lack of enrollments. Second it will save the student time and make enrollment much easier next fall.

All Bill Goodner loans are due before final examinations. No examinations may be taken with an outstanding loan.

Chuck McFadden, freshman from Bluejacket, has been elected president of the Engineers club for next year. Other officers were Jack Gray, Fairland, vice-president; Jeannie Workman, Miami, secretary; and Abdollamid Morshedi, Iran, treasurer.

NEO Baseball Team Favored In State Meet

Northeastern AAM's highly touted baseball nine will enter the state regional tournament this Thursday-Friday and Saturday at Eastern Oklahoma A&M College, if the rain permits, as the favorite on the strength of their conference championship.

If NEO takes the regional, they will travel to Grand Junction, Colorado to compete for the national junior college national championship title May 26, 27, 28, 29 and 30. Northeastern A&M has yet to obtain the championship at the nationals. They have, however, reached the final game.

The Norse nine will meet Murray Agricultural College of Tahlequah, Oklahoma in the initial contest. NEO has defeated the Southeastern Oklahoma school 7-4 and 6-0 in preceding games this season. The victor of the Murray-Northeastern A&M game will have the right to play the winner of the Cameron-Northern contest the next day. The Norse could well run into rival Eastern A&M for the state championship game.

Eastern bitterly disputed the nightcap of a doubleheader played at Wilburton earlier this season. The Wilburton school is always very enthusiastic about playing the Norsemen and this dispute will add fuel to the fire.

The argument arose when coach Homer Thomas agreed with the Eastern coach to call the game as near to six o'clock as possible.

Bad weather was prevalent and the team wanted to return to Miami as quickly as possible.

The Eastern coach agreed to Thomas' terms. NEO was leading Eastern 7-4 going into the bottom half of the sixth inning. The Northeastern club left the field for it was after six.

The Eastern coach protested the game. He argued that the inning should have been finished since it was already underway. The game has been yet to be settled by the Oklahoma Junior College Conference officials as it has had no direct bearing on the conference standings.

Thomas will be depending heavily on a highly touted pitching staff to overcome some hitting difficulties which could hamper the Norse in their effort to go all the way. Myrle Calmus, a tall and talented right hander from Tulsa carries much of the load. The sophomore business major has been getting better as the season progresses. In his last start he held conference runner-up Bacone hitless while his teammates scored four runs to wrap up the league title. Calmus will carry a 5-2 record into the tourney.

Figuring on Calmus to do his job, NEO will be anxiously awaiting the performances of southpaw John Cowley and spot pitcher Jerry Legg. Cowley has been a consistent performer for Coach Thomas the past two seasons, and should have a lot to say about post-season play. Legg has yet to be tested as he has combined control with a variety of pitches to baffles opponents.

Carrying the big sticks for Northeastern are Tulsans Jerry Henderson, Bob Bruno, and Bob Johnson. David Berryhill has been getting on base constantly, as proven by his team leadership in runs scored with 20. If pinch hitters are needed, Tom Halligan should get a hasty call due to his .568 average.

A composite outlook would seem to indicate that the Golden Norsemen will have to keep up their habit of taking advantage of the other teams' mistakes while good pitching and peaky hitting provides the winning combination.

Baseball Highlighting Sports Around NEO

By BOB RICHARDS
Coach Homer Thomas has molded a baseball team which should represent NEO pretty well in the regional tourney starting today at Wilburton. The Norse are not expected to be warmly received after their misunderstanding with Eastern.

However, considering that the Norse hitting is down by some previous standards, we don't have anything "in the bag." We have won most of our tough games by capitalizing on the other teams' mistakes, good pitching and alert base running.

The good pitching has stemmed from the arms of Myrle Calmus, 5-7, John Cowley, 3-1, and Jerry Legg, 3-0. Calmus twirled a no-hitter against Bacone two weeks ago, with several scouts from higher baseball circles watching closer than the umpire behind home plate. Just like Alan B. Shepard, Calmus appeared more calm than anyone else in the whole operation.

Jord Henderson, .367; Bob Bruno, .343, and Bub Johnson, .312, are currently on top of the batting average column. The team average is nothing to be ashamed of with a .276. Henderson and Bruno lead the team in home runs with 3 and 4 respectively. It's really going to take a team effort to top the regionals...NATION-

ALS?
A new four semester eligibility rule, which has not yet been officially passed, may seriously cut down the chances for the football team to appear in the Jr. Rose Bowl next fall.

Some transfers, however, will bolster the squad in the '61 season. Bill Vancleave, tackle, Steve Priborsky, back, and J. B. Simmons, end, all from Nebraska, should give the squad added experience. VanCleave played on the 1958 team that played in the Jr. Rose Bowl. Another outstanding prospect is Frank Cahoon, guard, a native of Massachusetts, who transferred from the University of Alabama.

The squad should, as compared with the 1960 team, be faster, and more running can be expected, (especially around the end). Coach Red Robertson will be looking for a quarterback to replace Gene Hart, who is currently high on the list of quarterbacks at Tulsa U.

Northeastern A&M is contributing to the collegiate football situation on a big scale. They have sent, or are sending, at least four members of this year's team to four-year colleges and universities. Hart is at Tulsa, Don Pittsities, Hart is at Tulsa, Don Pittsities, Hart is at Tulsa, Ronman will attend Colorado U. (Ronman has his eye on Wichita (or vice versa), and LeRoy Porter is now at Colorado State U.

Calmus Twirls No-Hitter As Norsemen Take Crown

Northeastern A&M, on the strength of the no-hit pitching and clutch batting of Myrle Calmus, clinched its seventh straight conference baseball crown here last Tuesday by shutting out the Bacone Indians 4-0 and 1-0.

In the first game of the Bacone series, Calmus faced only 23 batters, walked one, and struck out ten. Three major league scouts watched the proceedings.

The second game was a terrific pitchers' battle. NEO pitchers John Cowley and Jerry Legg teamed up to stop Bacone pitcher Ed Postonk 1-0. Postonk never allowed a hit until the last inning when Jord Henderson led off with a single to left, stole second, and came home on Calmus' game winning blow.

In preceding games, the Norse lambasted Oklahoma Military Academy, Tuesday, April 25, 17-0, at the local diamond. The three hit pitching of Jerry Legg and Nolan Padgett was the game highlight.

Following the OMA contest the Norse headed for southern Oklahoma for doubleheaders with Murray and Cameron. Murray fell 7-4 and 6-0 with Nolan Padgett being the star of the first game. The Tulsa Central product hit two doubles and a single which was good for three runs batted in.

In the nightcap, Bob Bruno hurled a three-hitter while striking out ten. This was his first mound appearance of the season.

Cameron handed NEO its first conference loss of the year on April 28. They clobbered Myrle Calmus 3-2 in the first game. Calmus gave up three first inning runs and then pitched shutout ball for the remaining six innings.

The Norse roared back in the second contest for an easy 9-1 victory. Wild pitches and eight Cameron errors figured in the scoring.

The only remaining conference game matches NEO with O.M.A. on May 15.

THE UNTOUCHABLE—Smiles can be seen all around as Northeastern A&M teammates congratulate sophomore hurler Myrle Calmus, Tulsa, on his no-hit shutout against the Bacone Indians to assure the Norse of at least a share of the conference crown. Calmus also chipped in with two hits.
