Homa Thomas Campus Hosts Annual New Director Religious Emphasis Week

BY CYNTHIA SEAMSTER

Homa Thomas, NEO's business instructor, sports publicity director and baseball coach, was elected regional director for Junior College Athletics in Region 2. He was chosen at a regional meeting held March 5 in Tulsa.

Thomas succeeds Leroy Montgomery.

Thomas started his teaching career in 1937 at Elk City where he coached junior high basketball and football. In 1941 he moved to the Okla. Military Academy as a business instructor and coached football, wrestling, boxing, and tennis. After seven years at the military academy, Thomas joined the NEO teaching staff.

"Seeking Truth through Science and Religion" is the theme of Religious Emphasis Week, according to Mr. Frank Cunningham, faculty committee member for the activities. The three-day program, which begins on March 18, will feature Dr. George K. Schweitzer, professor of chemistry and science at the University of Tennessee.

Dr. Schweitzer has visited more than 80 colleges and universities lecturing on science, philosophy, and Christianity. He is director of research in the fields of inorganic chemistry and nuclear chemistry on the Tennessee school's main campus and it's Oak Ridge division. He holds a Ph.D. in inorganic chemistry from the University of Illinois and another such degree in religion philosophy from New York University.

The film "Question 7" will be shown at the Coleman Theater Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday. The public is invited to hear Dr. Schweitzer's address before the film Wednesday evening at 7:30. The address will be free of charge.

The three-day program will begin Wednesday morning with an assembly at 9:00.

Dr. Schweitzer will be featured at this assembly and at others at 10 a.m. Thursday and 11 a.m. Friday. Ministers will visit classes at 10 a.m. Wednesday.

The Reverend Philip Crow, will lead devotions from 12:30 to 1:00 Wednesday in the Little Theater; Rev. Garland Spurgin will be speaker at the devotions program Thursday. Margaret Shelton will be featured speaker at vesper services in the Little Theater, 6:00 to 7:00 Thursday evening. Included in the assembly, devotion, and vesper programs will be singing services, led by several men from the community.

Discussions will be held in the girl's dorm and Commons Hall at 10:00 Wednesday and Thursday evenings. Participating in these discussions will be Dr. Schweitzer, Dr. Weldon Marcum, Rev. Daniel T. Sheaffer, Margaret Shelton, Rev. Donald J. Dallman, Rev. Paul B. Clark, Rev. Russell Martin, Rev. Lloyd A. Peters, Rev. Joe B. Williams, and Rev. Crow.

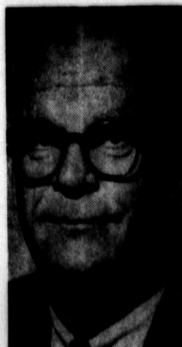

Faculty members who have worked with the Miami Ministerial Alliance in planning the program are Frank Cunningham, Eldon Devine, Mary Roddy, Mr. and Mrs. Don Dyer, Merrill Chaney, and Oscar Costain.

Council To Senate

The Student Council of NEO will hence be known as the Student Senate. The members voted unanimously Tuesday, February 18, to change the name.

Charles Burwell, who presented the motion before the group stated, "The Student Council in nearly all of the colleges in Oklahoma is known as the Student Senate and Student Council sounds very high schoolish."

NEW DIRECTOR — Homa Thomas, instructor and baseball coach at NEO has been elected regional director for Junior College Athletics in Region 2. He replaces Leroy Montgomery, athletic director from Cameron College.

Rule of No Card Playing Should Be Obeyed By All

Any student frequenting the student union this year has probably noticed a large lettered sign stating "no card playing before 3:00 p.m. on weekdays." Sophomores, who can remember the "good ole days" of last year have been especially annoyed with the rule.

However, since this regulation is evidently here to stay, we students should try to abide by it. Playing cards under the table and other such devious means prove nothing except the immaturity of the players and possibly cause resentment among students noticing the game.

The rule was made for the good of all, and, although it's hard to admit, many of us sophomores probably did spend too much of our study and class time playing cards last year.

In the future, let's all try to support and obey our school regulations in every way, even if this means losing a little of our "card shark" reputation.

Library Is Red Tape Headquarters At NEO

If you happen to see one of your classmates walking down the hall with his arm in a sling, don't be alarmed! He has just returned from the library and has a severe case of writer's cramp.

You see, our library has a new system that is supposed to make things much easier. However, go try to check out two or more books at one time and see just how easy it is.

First you pick out your books, get a separate I.B.M. card for each one, and start writing. There's the book call number, your I.D. number, the name of the book, the author, your name, your address, your phone number, and finally, after having done first grade printing for the preceding, you get to sign your name in your own handwriting on the last black line.

Yes, the good ol' days when you signed your name on the card and got it stamped are gone. Before you know it, the library is going to need a new system to organize their new system!

Editors Invite Letters

The editors and staff members of the Norse Wind invite any student or teacher wishing to comment on any phase of campus or school life to write his opinions in the form of a letter to the editor and deliver it to the Norse Wind office, room 105 in the Administration building. The only qualifications for these letters are that they be signed and that they relate to sincere subjects, not personal feuds or petty grievances.

The staff hopes that by participating in this way, students will think of the Norse Wind as their paper and take a more active interest in it.

Heart Drive Is Hugh Success

The Northeastern Okla. A&M campus Heart Fund Drive, held Feb. 17 through Feb. 19 was a great success this year. Collections totaled $112.25 of which $84.88 was from the votes cast for the sweetheart at one cent per vote, and $27.37 from the dance held Wednesday, Feb. 19 in the student union ballroom with music provided by the Lancers.

Miss Betty Reshad, representative for the International Club was crowned "Queen of Hearts 1964" as a result of receiving more "penny votes from the students on campus.

Crowning this year's sweetheart was John Bradsher, president of the Intercollegiate Knights, the club which sponsored the heart fund drive on the NEO campus. The Heart Fund Organization presented Betty with a gold necklace engraved with her title. Raymond Worrel served the I.K.'s as chairman in charge of the Heart Fund Drive on the NEO campus.

QUEEN OF HEARTS—Betty Reshad representing the International Club, has been crowned "queen of hearts", climaxing the annual Heart Fund campaign on the NEO campus.

Thespians Present Double Bill Of Religious Plays

BY JANICE CLAY

The two one-act plays presented by the speech and drama department of Northeastern Okla. A&M lacked for nothing in the line of serious entertainment. Both had a religious theme that gives food for thought.

The "Octogenarian" by Joe V. Graber, and directed by Charles Grimsley, is a story of an old man and a young boy. In the same hospital room, the old man is dying and doesn't want to. On the other hand, the young boy had tried to commit suicide and had been stopped.

The life the old man had wanted to live passes before his eyes and he things of himself as being a great person. He dreams he is a leader of the world.

The young man is envious of the fact that the old man will soon be set free from this life. The anguish of his whole life is in his voice as he cries out, "What is life without love?"

The young man gives the older one the courage to face death while the old man gives the younger, courage to face life.

Bob Bethell, as the old man and Charles Burwell, as the boy, performed as seasoned troupers.

"Christ in the Concrete City", by P. W. Turner, directed by John Hazelton, the story of the Crucifixion of Jesus by every one of us every day. The actions of the people of Jesus' time are the same then as they are now, hardened against the Savior because He wants to change their lives.

The plays were presented Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights, Feb. 27, 28, 29.

Music Rings On Campus

The sound of music has covered the NEO campus during the last week. Over 3,000 students have converged, with the common interest of music, to participate in the 17th annual music festival.

The piano competition was conducted last Friday and Saturday with 22 towns sending entries. The top 23 students were picked by the judges to be featured in a recital on Sunday, March 8. Mr. Douglas Payton was chairman.

A piano concert by one of the judges, Mr. Digby Bell, was presented on Thursday preceding the contest. Mr. Bell is piano instructor at the University of Oklahoma.

The vocal section, with Kenneth Richards as chairman, was conducted Tuesday with 20 towns participating in the divisions of soloists, choruses, glee clubs, choirs and ensembles. A one-time student of NEO traveled from Ponca City to enter her chorus. She is Mrs. Leslie Rardin, music teacher. The well-known boys choir of Neesho also competed.

The instrumental groups with Dr. Robert Swanson, chairman, competed Thursday with 24 towns entering the divisions of concert bands, reed solos, ensembles, and reed and strings.

DEBATE AND SPEECH TROPHY—Jeanne Burger of Tulsa and Charles Burwell of Muskogee display with beaming pride the forestric trophy they won in speech and debate competition at Southeastern State college in Durant. Jeanne and Charles were major point-getters in the tourney that ended with NEO placing second in the junior division sweepstakes and third in the senior division.

Honors Taken By Debators At Tourney

Speech and debate competitors from NEO won a share of the honors at the Southeastern State College Savages tournament in Durant Friday and Saturday. They competed against 38 teams from junior and senior colleges from five states.

The students, directed by John Hazelton, placed second in the junior division sweepstakes and third in the senior division.

The rankings were earned by first place junior division debators Jeanne Burger and Charles Burwell, who defeated teams from the University of Houston, North Texas State College, and Kansas State College; Bob Bethell in senior men's poetry; and Jeanne Burger in senior women's oratory Burwell, who placed third in senior men's oratory, and Jeanne, placing third in senior women's poetry, earned additional sweepstakes points. Miss Burger and Bethell are Tulsans; Burwell is from Muskogee.

Northeastern had two debate teams entered in the competition both of which entered the final with records of four victories and one defeat. Cindy Wasson, Miami, and Clyde Faulkner, Wahn, were members of the second team which finished as one of the top ten teams in the tournament.

STATE SENATOR VISITS NEO—State senator Dewey Bartlett (left), of Tulsa, is welcomed to Northeastern Okla. A&M College by Dean Cecil Ferree. Senator Bartlett was the first in a series of guest lecturers before Dr. Ferree's newly-organized state government class.

Oklahoma State Senator Addresses Gov. Students

BY GARY GARTON

Some classes center around the academic theory of a subject, while others are based on a practical application of the subject matter.

In the case of Dean Cecil Ferree's state government class, the curricula has become a skillful blending of the two approaches to learning. For a part of the three-hour course, students follow the text to gain a working knowledge of the functions and structure of state government.

As a second aspect, the students, who are allowed to enter the class on the basis of their scholastic standing, and their interest in political science or government as a major field of study, are given the opportunity to hear guest lecturers from all phases of our state and local government.

Dean Ferree feels that this method of conducting the class is best geared to the caliber of students who are interested in taking this course. "The responsibility for carrying out the program of study rests a great deal on the initiative of the students", Ferree stated. "This class is the same as any other government course in the material that it covers, and differs only in the method with which the material is handled."

One recent guest lecturer in the scheduled slate of speakers for the course was State Senator Republican Dewey Bartlett, from Tulsa, who represents Tulsa county in our state legislature.

Senator Bartlett stressed the growing trend in Oklahoma toward a two-party system of government, with the election of a Republican governor and with the appearance of more popular Republican candidates such as Bud Wilkinson. During his stay on campus, the senator also commented on the need for greater attention by the state legislation to the problem of reapportionment in Oklahoma.

Dean Ferree has stressed the need for such speakers as Senator Bartlett, to round out the class curricula with a practical view of the academic theory learned by the students. "We hope to have two or three speakers from the state legislature, and others from executive and judicial branches of the state government, as well as representatives of the various state organizations such as the highway commission or the Pardon and Parole Board", Ferree said. "We would also like to have some members of the municipal government speak to our class if possible."

The course, which has been in effect for some five years now, is designed as an honors course, and is slanted toward political science or government majors who can meet the scholastic requirements.

ROTC Ball Planned

Beatles' Hair-Do Greatest Enemy To Their Popularity

BY ANN MOCHA

"The Beatles' music rate but not their hair", seems to be the general reaction of most NEO students when asked their opinion of the singers. Most all thought the vocal group would be a passing fad. What do you think?

The Beatles all hail from Liverpool, a seaport city which, because its sailing men bring in the latest hit singles from America, is the hippest music spot in England. They wear "puddin basin" haircuts that date back to ancient England.

Looking the situation over, you may come to the same conclusion that several of your colleagues had in answering a recent poll on the Beatles. They voiced their opinion on the Beatles' "hair-do", and if they think their popularity will last very long.

Tom Collins, from New York, says they are nothing out of the ordinary. As far as their hair goes he says "I look bad but not like that." Too many public appearances seems to be Tom's reason for the Beatles gradual decrease in popularity.

Donna Lewis, from Tulsa, likes the Beatles because they've got a great sound. Their hair, however, seems sloppy and uncouth to her. As to their popularity, she thinks they will not last long. "They're just a fad."

Jane Kerpan, commonly known as "Chicago", says "To an extent I like them. They sing well, but look queer!" Chicago thinks their popularity will not last long because they will eventually have to get a haircut.

John Carter, from Miami, likes their music because it's good to dance to. John doesn't think much of their hair, but he says, "their popularity will stay if they continue to turn out records like they have been. It may gradually decrease in the future though, but they will be here to stay like Elvis and Sinatra."

Sue Wright, from Tulsa, has this to say. "I like their songs real well because they have a good beat. I like their hair for them—it's part of their attraction—but I wouldn't want all the United States' boys to go crazy and let their hair grow like that!"

"They will fade as fast as they came in because you can run a good thing into the ground!"

Air Base In Texas Hosts NEO Cadets For Brief Survey

With the roar of the mighty engines of the C47 the AFROTC cadets were airborne for Perrin Air Force Base. 2:15 p.m. Thursday, March 5 was lift off time for the 14 cadets and Captain Patrick Keith. The party arrived at the base about 4:15 p.m.

Upon arrival at the base, the cadets were checked in at the Bachelors Officers Quarters and then taken to supper. The rest of the evening was "free time" for the boys in which few courtesies were extended.

The following day tours of the base were scheduled which included a tour of the radar installation and the flight line along with others. Departure time was set for 3 p.m. via C47, but due to inclement weather in Tulsa and Miami the plane could not take off. With existing conditions as they were the cadets elected to return by bus which made the arrival time in Miami about 9:30 P.M. All in all the trip was very interesting and enjoyable especially to those who had never been close to an air base before.

Rodeo Planned By Agriculture Society Set For Mid-April

Aggie society will sponsor a rodeo to be held April 10 and 11 at the Miami Fairgrounds.

Robert Rich, Jim Patrick, and Bill Willis are the co-chairmen of the rodeo which is being held to help pay the expenses of Aggie Day.

It has already been decided that this rodeo, the first one ever sponsored by college students in this area, will be limited in contestants to only junior college boys and to Miami high school boys.

Men On Campus Are More Clothes Conscious

BY TED FISHER

Is NEO "typical of American college campuses"? A fair question. Let's take a look around for a moment and explore a topic which is related to the appearance of every college campus: The look of its students—males, in particular, and fashion trends in specific.

Teenage boys, once considered sloppy in dress, now match girls in their interest and taste in appearance. It was not too many years ago that the flying shirt tail, bleached out, wishy-washy blue jeans, and scalloped duck tails were considered marks of social prestige.

Now, however, the picture is changing. A quick glimpse around the campus readily reveals that these "styles of status" of only a few years ago are now very much obsolete, and classic traditional clothes are definitely the decided trend.

Dressier trends among older male groups are well reflected on the average college campus, and NEO appears to be no exception. The average college student seems very conscientious and concerned about his dress.

Fashion tastes among teenagers have altered radically during the past three or four years. Blue jeans once considered the rule, rather than the exception, are now bowing to slacks, corduroys and Bermudas, as the seasons permit.

Slacks for the college student this season appear to be getting away from the high water, extreme slim-jim look, and are only moderately slim - jim. Pleats, which were once very fashionable with college students, have virtually disappeared. They are still tapered, but somewhat less so.

Most of the teens nowadays insist on dress shirts for classroom at least for the time being. And who knows what tomorrow could bring? As the trade winds come and go, so do styles, and the appearances of dress on the "typical" college campus of America.

Deep subtle tones, small patterns and checks are still favored by most collegiates; gaudy colors appear to have lost their favor, at least for the time being. And who knows what tomorrow could bring? Class Backs Safety Belts

A safety class at NEO has decided to put "some preaching into practice".

Members have decided to install automobile seat belts free of charge for any student or resident of the area.

Merrill Chaney, teacher of the class, said anyone who wishes to have seat belts installed in his car should buy the belts and telephone William Frisbie (KI 2-4342) chairman of the project for an appointment.

"Members of the class will work in two-man teams during out-of-class hours," Chaney explained.

"We really hope that many students and also residents of the community will take advantage of this opportunity," Chaney said, adding "The National Safety Council estimates that some 5,000 lives could be saved each year with the use of safety belts."

FLIGHT FACTS

BY JAMES PHILLIPS

NEO's campus was recently visited by Col. James D. Berry of the United States Air Force. Col. Berry was reportedly "well pleased" with the cadet group here. Col. Berry is the Detachment Commander for Wilburton, Tishomingo, Oklahoma State University, and NEO. He is also the professor of Air Science at OSU.

Eat, drink and be merry was the sound of the members of the Military Fraternity and their dates recently. Plenty of good food, good music, and a place to dance made up a party for the Fraternity members. There was plenty of food and the Lancers provided the good music. Harry Synar provided the use of his lake cabin for the night. The party was honored with the presence of Col. and Mrs. Hardy Holt, the fraternity adviser, Capt. and Mrs. Patrick Keith, and Capt. and Mrs. Bobby Hayes.

Old friends met on NEO's campus after Capt. Lair of the United States Air Force read that Capt. Patrick Keith was appointed Commandant of Cadets. Capt. Keith and Capt. Lair were stationed in Japan together. Capt. Lair was recently commissioned as captain and is currently stationed at Tinker Air Force Base in Oklahoma City as Cost Control Officer. Capt. Lair is the nephew of Mrs. Lair, ass't. librarian and is a graduate of NEO and OSU.

Sam Holman New Press Day To Agriculture Leader Be April 10

Sam Holman, freshman from Locust Grove, was chosen to lead the Aggie Society for the Second semester.

Also elected at the meeting held Mar. 5 were Harry Knipe, vice-president; Calvin Flaharty, secretary; and Bob Ransom, treasurer. Aggie Day plans and fund raising projects were also discussed at the meeting.

New Stereo Set In Student Union

A new Wurlitzer stereo unit has been installed in the Bruce G. Carter student union building. It is equipped with overhead stereo speakers which allow music to be heard in the ballroom, pool room, and the cafeteria.

The new unit features long play stereo albums plus the standard forty-five R.P.M. records.

Most students after looking over the new stereo and its new selection of records, will be glad to see the old juke box finally put to rest.

April 10 will mark the date of the 17th annual Press Day to be held on the NEO campus.

Registration will be held in the lobby of the student union from 8:30 to 9:30. An assembly will follow in the Little Theater with an introductory speech by Jack Rucker, a welcome from Dr. Carter, and a general address by Frosty Troy, editor of the "Oklahoma Journal".

Conferences will then be held throughout the day with discussions on different phases of newspaperwriting, photography, and yearbook layouts.

A program of color slides presented by Mr. Waymon Gibson will be part of the entertainment at the Press Day banquet beginning at 1:00 p.m. in the student union. An address will be given by Alex Adwan, manager of the Oklahoma City Bureau of UPI.

Clay Allen, president of the Press Club will present awards which include trophies for the first place winners in editorial, news, feature, and sports writing. A certificate will be given to each second and third place winner. An award will also be given for the best all around newspaper.

The banquet will end the press day activities which will have hopefully given someone a better idea of just how to write a better story, take a better picture, or even publish a better annual.

Bloodmobile Visits NEO Campus To Solicit Donations

The Red Cross Bloodmobile was on the NEO campus on Wednesday, March 11th, 1964. It was located in the Student Union Ball Room, and was open for receiving blood from 12 noon until 7 p.m.

Several clubs and organizations backed the bloodmobile by various means. Such as the ROTC classes and individuals were urged to donate blood, and were rewarded if they did so by being excused from leadership lab the following Tuesday.

Also the Intercollegiate Knights pledged one-hundred percent cooperation in donation to the bloodmobile and helped other organizations would do the same.

Also the IK's stated that they would help set up the equipment needed for taking blood in the ball room.

The donations made to the Red Cross Bloodmobile will begin or add to each persons deposit in the Red Cross Blood Bank.

Cokes and sandwiches were given to the donors after the donation.

Coeds Seek Glamour Title

Some lucky girl from Northeastern Okla. A&M will represent the college in the National Best Dressed Coed Contest, sponsored by Glamour Magazine. The winning girl will be picked from ten candidates, and will receive $20, donated by Dr. Carter. The winner will be picked on the bases of appearance and dress. Pictures of the winner will be sent to the national contest to compete for numerous prizes and scholarships. The ten candidates include Diana Oliver, Dixie Mckinzie, Phyllis Hendrix, Donna Turney, Judy Washington, Kendall Harrell, Glenda Quinton, Nancy Kelley, Carol Armstrong, and Sharon Cook.

Mildred Carter Named To "Who's Who"

BY DAVE SIGSWORTH

Mrs. Mildred G. Carter, business manager of NEO, is among the entries of the latest edition of "Who's Who in American Women", which can be found in the NEO library.

Mrs. Carter has been active in various clerk and secretarial positions, starting as secretary to the County Engineers Office in Columbus, Kansas, from 1941-45.

During 1945-46 Mrs. Carter held several responsible jobs, such as secretary to the state senator in Topeka, Kan., clerk in the Office of Price Administration in Columbus, Kan., and payroll clerk at the Miami plant of B. F. Goodrich.

INTRAMURAL CHAMPIONS—Bond's Unbeatables bombed the Raiders, 82 to 52 to win the coveted intramural basketball crown of NEO. The Unbeatables, sponsored by J. R. Bond and the Press Club, had little trouble in disposing of 9 out of 10 teams. Using their balanced height and overall speed, the Unbeatables dominated the intramural tournament. The team's only loss was a 51 to 49 setback at the hands of the Raiders. In an exhibition game, the Unbeatables slapped a 78 to 41 loss on the faculty team. The exhibition was set up to help raise money for the Spanish Club trip to Mexico.

Cook's Corner

BY TERRY COOK

Track and baseball are once again very evident on the NEO campus as both teams are going through very heavy drills daily to prepare for the coming events. Both departments will be counting heavily on freshmen this year, as they have one of the most talented groups to ever enroll at NEO.

Baseball coach, Homa Thomas recruited two pitchers, Kenny Dean and Larry Patterson, who were both members of Oklahoma's all-state team last year. Both are expected to bolster the pitching staff considerably.

Along with Dean and Patterson, the Norse will have such help as Larry Shiplett, Sam Slucker, Don Thomas, Gene Dillman, Jack Guess, Jerry Hildebrand and Speedy Gonzales to boost its attack.

This should be another tremendous year for spring sports, so whether the sport is baseball or track, go out and support your team.

Mexico Jaunt Begins Soon

A car wash, candy selling, bingo games, donut sales, baby sitting, gift certificates, and a basketball game are just a few of the fund raising activities the Language Club and the Phi Theta Kappa honor fraternity are using to finance their trip to Mexico.

Leaving Miami on March 19th, all the travelers will go by college bus and two station wagons to Mexico City where they will stay at the Regis Hotel. After a four day stay in Mexico City they will travel on to Tascos which is 100 miles southeast of the City, meanwhile visiting the Open Market of Cuernavaca midway between Mexico City and Tascos.

The adult sponsors traveling with the students are Dr. and Mrs. Carter, Dean Angle, Dr. and Mrs. Charles Letcher and Mrs. Doris Burnes, the head of the language department.

NEO Upset No. 1 Ravens

The Northeastern Okla. A&M Golden Norsemen pulled off the biggest upset in junior college basketball as they outscored Coffeyville's number one ranked Red Ravens, 63 to 59.

The upset came with two seconds left on the clock and the score tied 59 all. Doug Gregory sank two free-throws to clinch the game. Bill Clingan scored the last two points as he intercepted a Coffeyville pass.

The Norsemen took the lead in the game from the start holding it until the second half when it became a see-saw battle down to the final buzzer.

Bill Clingan led the Norse scorers with 27 points while Chris Pervall of Coffeyville had game honors with 32.

This was the final game for two of NEO's Sophomore starters, Doug Gregory, guard, from Shawnee; and Jack Lewis, guard, from Coweta.

Snow Battle Rages

The first snowfall in March brought out many Northeastern Okla. A&M College students who participated in a snow ball fight which lasted for two hours.

Both passage ways were blocked to Commons Hall and Dyer Hall by what seem to be flying saucers which were coming from all directions. Also many students in the Bruce G. Carter Student Union were detained because of all the snow balls flying around.

Aggie Day Is Slated To Be Biggest Ever

April 11 has been set for "one of the biggest Aggie Days ever" announced Harry Synar, head of the Agricultural Department.

This day gives all the 4-H and F.F.A. members in the four state area the chance to visit the NEO campus and exhibit their skills. This year the Aggies are expecting over 1200 guests.

The contestants compete in such divisions as dairy, beef cattle, swine, sheep, crops, speech, and meats. Awards will be given to the top three individuals in each category. A trophy will be awarded to the high team in each contest and a sweepstake trophy given in both the 4-H division and the F.F.A. division.

The Aggies have been trying in various ways to raise the $500 needed for trophies. Selling chances on a $50 gift certificate from Millner-Berkey department store has been their primary means. The drawing for the gift will climax the Aggie Day activities.
