

DEPARTMENT OF COMMUNICATION & FINE ARTS

Are you a leader who loves to meet new people? Maybe music and rhythm are part of your daily soundtrack.

Our graduates not only receive a foundation of fundamental college courses, but also have a chance to create in a hands-on environment.

With a low student-to-teacher ratio, NEO students get more studio time, more stage time, and more performance time in modern facilities such as Kah-Ne Hall. Artists can master a range of mediums from cartoon art, to cinematography, to ceramics, while performing artists receive both on-stage and backstage skills. English students have the freedom to explore several areas of communication as they earn credits towards a four-year transfer program. At NEO, graduates save money as they develop lifelong skills.

In the NEO A&M's Department of Communication and Fine Arts, you can express your creativity from the page to the canvas to the stage.

“The amazing faculty and staff at NEO’s theatre department taught me many useful skills that I use at the American Musical and Dramatics Academy. At NEO, I developed leadership skills that have already put me ahead of my classmates. I was able to get experience onstage and backstage, which made the transition much easier! I will always treasure my years at NEO.”

– Shanika Randolph

American Musical & Dramatics Academy, Los Angeles • 2009

“My English education at NEO has been incredibly important. My teachers taught me how to write papers correctly and that skill has played a major part in my goal of becoming a child support caseworker. The teachers pushed me to be my very best, and I am so grateful!”

– Whitney Ragsdale
